SCRIP TALK ....

All NSCA members in range of the ATCO meeting advertised on this page should plan to attend....looks like a great event....SCRIPTOR JIM HARTMAN of Beaver, PA has a token from Family Theatre, Mather, PA. He wonders whether coal related?? Anyone know??....

Scriptor Lloyd Wagaman: Did I reply to your 12/30 note on the four tokens?? I believe that I did, however, am getting forgetful in my ole age. Hi!

Scriptor R. R. Tippy forwards information from The Penny Magazine dated 1835. Would the members be interested in a story condensed from these interesting articles?? Let me know and I will pass the word along to Tippy...He has prepared a special form to list all of his stocks and bonds certificates in his collection. If you would like to have a sample, drop Tippy a note .....Scriptor Bob Gossett inquires about a token from JOE PACK, Rolfe, WV..

also a A. M. Smith, Winefrede, WV. Anybody have info on these two that they would like to share with a new member !! Too, he wanted info on the price for the Edkins Catalogs which he will find in this issue of the bulletin..... Hope that you are making plans to attend the NATIONAL CONVENTION to be held in Oak Hill, West Va. at the Holiday Inn on Friday and Saturday, May 1 and 2. The great plans being formulated will be announced in the next bulletin... For those who have attend at Oak Hill before, you know what a great meeting we had.... Better start making your plans now and call your reservations to your nearest Holiday Inn...Tell them to note that your reservation is for NSCA meeting since the have a block of rooms reserved.... This will be in the middle of the white water rafting season. If there would be any interest in any of the members for a white water raft trip, please let your Editor know and we will forward info... The trip takes a full day so you would have to come to Oak Hill a day early... Thousands take the trip each summer and your Editor can personally testify as to the thrills....after all these years, I finally decided to make the trip and you know who got dumped out of the rubber raft on his first trip!! Remind me to tell you !!...On the mailing list for NSCA, we have removed from the computer listings all those who did not renew for 1986 or 1987....Only the 1987 members will be getting the present bulletin. If you know of a member who has not renewed for 1987, this will explain why he did not get this present bulletin.... Weather here this winter has been very mild, however, we do have a winter storm watch out for tonight (1/21/87) so maybe we will be getting some winter after all. ....Too, we still need membership activity....why not contact some of those friends that you trade tokens with and sign them for NSCA !! We need your help...

EXPLODER TOKEN CATALOG PROGRESS REPORT

As announced in the last issue of Scrip Talk, NSCA has agreed to publish my catalog of exploder tokens. The book, which will be profusely illustrated, will have exact descriptions of all known tokens and a realistic price guide. In addition, it will include chapters devoted to such things as die sinkers, metal and compositions, and a discussion of die sinkers.

Your help is needed! If you have exploder tokens not listed in the Edkins books, please send exact descriptions, including sizes, shapes, and metallic composition. Also, if you own any of the tokens listed below, I would like to hear from you:

Colorado MX 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 23, and 27
Pennsylvania MX 17, 20, and 21
Texas MX 2
Utah 6, 18, and 20
West Virginia 12, 21b, and 67

A section of the book will be devoted to a discussion of how exploder tokens were used by the mining companies. I'm sure many members, especially those of you who have worked in the mines, know quite a lot about this. Please, take a few minutes to write me a letter and share your knowledge.

I would like to include a few photographs of such things as the buildings used by mining companies to store explosives. If you have anything which might be of interest, let me know of it.

To make this book as complete as possible, and a credit to NSCA, I need the cooperation of all members. Correspondence should be sent to David E. Schenkman, P.O. Box 366, Bryantown, MD 20617. All letters will be answered.

FIXED PRICE LIST ON COAL SCRIP. WILL TAKE VIRGINIA SCRIP OR OTHER VIRGINIA TOKENS I CAN USE AS TRADE. IF WE TRADE, EACH PAYS OWN POSTAGE, IF YOU BUY, POSTAGE EXTRA.
LET ME KNOW WHAT YOU HAVE TO TRADE. SAE WILL GET MY WANT LIST. GOOD LUCK

I want to thank the members who took the time to write me and let me know about additional coal pictorial tokens. Here are a few more that you can add to the list...

1. Cranes on nest
2. Star with long rays
3. Shield with arrow
4. Man's head with beard
5. Man's silhouette
6. Cardinal
7. Keystone

There are also some nice miscellaneous coal pictorials you could add to your collection...

1. Fayetteville, WV - Centennial 1883-1983 - Miner, Mule and Coal car.
2. Pocahontas Coalfield Centennial $3.00 1883-1983 - Coal car.
3. N.S.C.A. 10th Anniversary token - 1972-1982 - Miner.
4. N.S.C.A. Spring & Fall meeting tokens - ten different colors, miner
5. Washington MX-4 - Miner with cap and lamp.
6. New Mexico MX-1 - Swastica

I recently acquired an interesting coal pictorial token from the Civil War era. Obverse: Man's head with long beard/ Good for 1¢ worth of coal
Reverse: Central Coal Co. office/Cincinnati, Ohio.

You will note on the first list published in December 1966 "SCRIP TALK", we listed a Bee hive. At present this one is up in the air as I was told a Bee Hive Mining Co., Honaker, VA, had a beehive on some of their tokens. Three Virginia collectors say there is no such token. Can anyone help us on this one? We will try to get a definite answer and let you know.

Also, some of you reported thistle instead of flowers so I marked the list flower or thistle.

Please write me and let us know about any coal pictorial tokens that have not been reported. Your help will be greatly appreciated by the members as I will see that they are added to the list in "SCRIP TALK".

Believe Collectors,

Most of you know that I had a robbery last year. It was a very bad experience and I have had difficulty in shaking it off. I'm sorry to say that it has left an emptiness and a lot to be desired in the way of enthusiasm for meeting and enjoying people in pursuit of my hobby....collecting Scrip. I'm going to attempt to sell a part of my collection that someone else might be more interested in. I intend to concentrate on local counties in my area of Kentucky.

I feel like I've got a few things to offer that might be of some interest. I went over everyone and cut the price down, and I think some are "one of a kind". Some have been dug, but that's where your best scrip is, I think! If you order something and don't like it, you've got a three day return privilege providing its intact. You need to include some postage, and you can call me after 6PM, 606886606 Thanks.

MINERS CAP LAMPS

NO. 2

BY

MARK BALLARD AND JOHN PODGURSKI

The collector of Mine Lighting recognizes the oil wick lamp as the first method of cap illumination used in mining. While Candle Holders predominated in the Metal and Non-Metal Mining fields, oil wick cap lamps were used extensively in the coal mining fields.

While early literature simply refers to them as miners lamps, many names are used to describe them across the country. Some of these names were derived from the fuels used to fire the lamps. Examples being, "Sunshine", Whale Oil, "Sperm Oil", "Lard Oil", and "Oil Wick". Only sunshine fuel came in a solid form, while other fuels were liquid in nature. Many of these fuels were expensive to the miners of the period causing cheaper fuels, such as kerosene, to be used. A common distinction also existed based on the size of the cap lamp. "MINERS" lamps tended to be smaller in size while "DRIVERS" lamps were larger. Drivers lamps were more commonly used by machine operators and Mule boys. The lamps wick tube or spout was also available with a reflector to keep the mule or driver from getting burned by the open flame in the ventilation currents of the mines haulageway. Miners lamps sold as Sunshine Lamps contained a copper lining inside the wick tube and lamp reservoir to conduct the heat needed to melt the solid fuel.

Multiple varieties of oil wick lamps exist, with advanced collections containing over 400 different lamps. One of the most sought after lamps are those containing the United Mine Workers of America logos, usually identified by the abbreviations U.M.W., U.M.W.A., or U.M.W. of A. This article is dedicated to the identification of some of the miners lamps in this series known to exist in collectors hands. Other unknown to the authors likely exist. We would appreciate hearing about any varieties not listed in this article.

Most of the oil wick cap lamps in this series were made by the Trethaway Bros. of Parsons, Pa., although the earlier vintage of lamps in this series did not carry the company name on the lamp. The style and construction methods are similar on all the varieties seen by the authors.

The original lamps were made at the request of John L. Lewis to be suspended from Post Drill Bits in the redecoration of the U.M.W.A. headquarters building in Washington, D.C. These lamps were not intended for "in mine" use, and the actual number of lamps originally manufactured is not known. Several of these original lamps were taken from the office over the years and some actually used in mining. The manufacturer however, did produce an unknown quantity of other lamps after the original order. This would explain the variations of lamps found by collectors over the years. Most of these lamps found their way into the mines, and they were used throughout the coal fields.

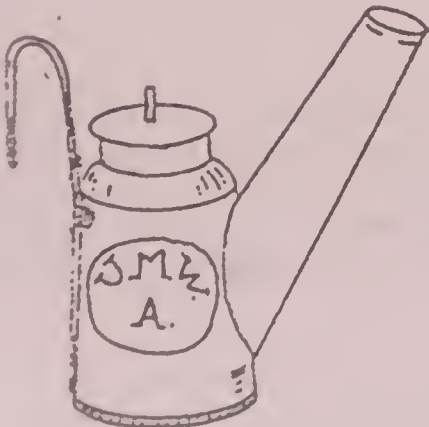

With the exception of "one" all brass lamp I've seen, all other lamps in this series are constructed of both tin and brass. All the lamps I've seen use brass for the logo, and they are soldered onto the reservoir. All the logos are positioned as if the letters are read with the wick tube facing to the right. The transfer section from the lid to the reservoir is brass on all the lamps in this article.

Special thanks are in order to Tony Moon and Elwood Maples for supporting information and to David Ballard for the artwork.

CIRCLE VARIETY

COVER

The only lamp in this series with a round logo

This lamp's construction is slightly different than the others in this article. The reservoir section on this lamp is straight (vertical) while this section on all the other lamps is tapered. It has a single wick tube and only the logo and transfer section are brass. It is a named lamp.

BANNER VARIETIES

The lamp to the left has a single wick tube with a crimp at its end. The breather tube in the lid is offset to the rear. Only the logo and transfer section are brass.

The lamp to the right has a single wick tube with crimp at its end. The breather tube is also located to the rear. The logo has the letter "A" added and the brass transfer section is slightly higher on this lamp. The lamp has no name.

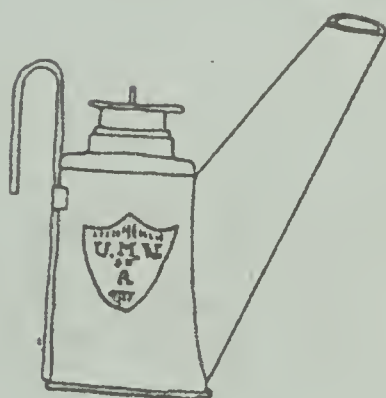

The lamp to the left also has a single wick tube with crimp at its end. The breather tube in the lid is centered and the logo contains a series of vertical lines above and below the U.M.W.A. The lamp has no name.

SHIELD TYPES

This lamp appears to be of the earliest vintage by its construction and simplicity. The brass shield contains only the U M W A letter without the details of the following lamps. The bottom section of the reservoir is brass. The lamp has no name.

This lamp is the first shown to use a double wick tube construction. The tip of the wick tube is approximately a half inch above the lid versus a full inch on the previous lamps. The lower lid section is also brass as is the bottom of the reservoir on this lamp. Vertical lines are used to accent the U.M.W. of A. letters. The lamp is named.

This lamp also employs the double wick tube. The bottom on this lamp however is tin and has a domed recess extending into the reservoir. A different style hook and mounting is used on this lamp. Its shape is different and it is secured to the lamp by a much larger overlapped piece of tin secured at a higher location on the lamp.

This lamp reverts to a single wick tube with crimp at its end. It is however smaller in diameter and its upper base section is soldered to the reservoir at a lower position than any of the other lamps. The lamp bottom also has a recess but this one is straight instead of dome shaped. The lamp is named.
